A year has passed

It has already been a year since the new Editorial Board of the Polish Journal of Medical Physics and Engineering took over the editorial duties. We do believe that there is a need for yet another journal devoted entirely to medical physics applications in medicine. During that year, almost 50 manuscripts were received, both from Poland and from abroad. They cover a wide spectrum of medical physics issues. Most manuscripts deal with the medical physics problems in radiotherapy. This is understandable since most medical physicists work in this domain. There are also papers devoted to medical physics problems in diagnostics, nuclear medicine and radiation protection.

We appreciate the effort of all authors, including those whose papers were not accepted by the reviewers. Writing a good paper is not an easy task. One may only master it by trying to write consecutive papers. Realizing how difficult is such task, the Editors plan to include in every issue of the journal a guide with indications how to produce a good paper.

Taking an opportunity of this summary of the last year, I would like to thank all the authors for submitting their papers. I would also like to thank all reviewers who devote their precious time to the evaluation of the papers, and in particular to thank my closest collaborators Witold Skrzyński and Piotr Tulik. I would also like to thank Wojciech Bulski for his support in linguistic matters.
