Beiträge zur Tabakforschung International, Chausseestraße 51A, 10015 Berlin, Germany

The chronology of lifetime publications authored or coauthored by Dr Dietrich Hoffmann covers a broad spectrum of different aspects of chemical carcinogenesis, the effects of air pollution and diet on cancer and - last but not least - all areas of tobacco research. In addition, Dr Dietrich Hoffmann has served as editor of several monographs concerned with research in the fields mentioned above.

The important contributions of Dietrich Hoffmann to the science of carcinogenicity caused by lifestyle and environmental factors are impressively documented in the following list of his publications. It is based on entries in the scientific archive of Dr Hoffmann, which were kindly made available to the editors of this journal by Mrs Ilse Hoffmann. The material was reviewed and expanded by Dr Barbara Boenke of the Editorial Office of "Beiträge zur Tabakforschung International". [Beitr. Tabakforsch. Int. 24 (2011) 293–313].
