

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION

The editorial department for theology and religion offers a wide range of titles that illuminate themes in a variety of fields of study, encompassing both traditional and innovative perspectives – from classical Biblical scholarship and church history to the philosophy of religion and critical religious studies. In addition to our core strengths – critical editions, prominent book series, and commentaries in Christian theology and philosophy of religion – we continue to steadily expand our portfolio. Thus, along with our Jewish Studies program, Islamic studies and Asian religions are coming more into focus. New media in the context of theology and religious studies, such as Digital Humanities, are also a growing area for us. Moreover, we continue to pursue innovative approaches and new fields, such as secularism research. Altogether, we offer an exciting interdisciplinary and, above all, international program.

WE OFFER

- ▶ A long tradition in biblical studies and theology, with journals covering Ancient Near Eastern Studies and Old and New Testament scholarship, together with their associated book series
- ▶ A wide range of offerings encompassing all continents, many cultures and religious communities, different eras, and different methodological and disciplinary approaches
- ▶ A growing portfolio in the field of biblical reception history, with the series Studies of the Bible and Its Reception, the handbook series HBR, and the journal JBR
- ▶ Relevant reference works such as the Encyclopedia of the Bible and Its Reception and the Theologische Realenzyklopädie, both available in database format
- ▶ Comprehensive primary source publications with critical editions of texts by writers of the early Christian Church (Greek and Latin) as well as editions of works by Andrew Fuller, Friedrich Schleiermacher, Paul Tillich, Søren Kierkegaard, and Ernst Troeltsch
- ▶ A broad list in the field of Ancient Near Eastern studies, including standards such as the Reallexikon der Assyriologie und Vorderasiatischen Archäologie and Die babylonisch-assyrische Medizin in Texten und Untersuchungen (BAMTU), as well as the newer series Studies in Ancient Near Eastern Records (SANER)
- ▶ An expanded program in Islamic studies, Religion in Asia, the field of interreligious dialogue, and Digital Humanities
