Author instructions
Nordic Studies on Alcohol and Drugs

General considerations
Nordic Studies on Alcohol and Drugs operates in accordance with the Farmington Consensus and its ethical code. It is expected that research concerning human subjects will comply with the Declaration of Helsinki by the World Medical Association. Research reported in NAD should be well justified, well planned, appropriately designed, scrupulously analysed and honestly interpreted. All relevant ethical safeguards (such as informed consent) should be met in relation to subject protection, and where appropriate, studies should be appraised by an ethical review committee.

Before submitting, please consult the ethical guidelines of Nordic Studies on Alcohol and Drugs. Authors are expected to adhere to the following principles:

- Texts should not have been published previously, either in part or in full (exceptions can be made for texts published in languages inaccessible to most journal readers, please inform the editors in which language the text has been published).
- Texts should not be currently under consideration for publication elsewhere.
- All authors must have contributed substantially to the article and assume responsibility for its content.
- The research on which the article is based should abide by established ethical principles.

Submission procedure
All types of manuscripts must be submitted through our editorial manager. When you register, you obtain a user ID and password. Thorough instructions concerning every step of the submission procedure are available when logged in.

Before you submit any type of manuscript, please consider the following:

- Authors will be asked to declare any sources of funding as well as any conflicts of interest, together with the transfer of copyrights.
- All research reports undergo double blind peer review. Accordingly, the manuscript should be anonymous. The uploaded manuscript file should not include revealing information about the author(s), as e.g. acknowledgements, endnotes etc. This information can and should be submitted separately.
- The uploaded manuscript file should not include a front page. The system will automatically construct one based on the information you will provide.
- Original research articles should include an abstract (approx. 250 words) with proposed key words. Where appropriate, the abstract should be structured under the following headings: Aims, Design (or Methods, Data), Results, Conclusions.
- Original research articles should not exceed 7000 words (excluding figures and tables, each on separate pages). Indicate in the text where the tables and figures should appear. Footnotes are to be placed at the end of the text.
- Other reports, commentaries and similar contributions may vary in length from around 1000 to 4000 words; book reviews should not exceed 2000 words.

To avoid delays, the manuscript should be well prepared in accordance with the instructions.

Reference Style Guide
From January 2013 the journal is using the APA citation style (American Psychological Association). For more information, visit http://www.apastyle.org/

To quote a reference in the text give the surname of the author, year of publication and page numbers if applicable, e.g. (Jonsson, Svensson, & Andersson 2011, p. 1134; Pettersson, 1982, pp. 25-38).
The list of references should list all sources used in alphabetical order, indicating the author’s surname, first name or initials, year of publication, title of the book or publication, place of publication and publisher. For journal articles, indicate the author’s surname and the first letter of author’s first name, year of publication, title of the article, name of publication, volume number, issue number and inclusive page numbers. Below are a few examples:

Peer review

Research reports are pre-reviewed by the editor (sometimes in consultation with members from the editorial board) to confirm that the manuscripts adhere to the guidelines and scope of the journal. Manuscripts undergo blind review by two or more experts.

Publication

When a manuscript is accepted for publication corresponding authors will receive first proofs. Accepted submissions will be published online (in open access PDF format) as well as in print. Sources of funding will be declared in the final publication.

Translations

Nordic Studies on Alcohol and Drugs may in some cases be able to provide help with translations from and into English and other languages. Please contact the editorial team for more information.

Fees

The journal does not have article processing charges (APCs) nor article submission charges.
