

Editorial Policy

The Valahian Journal of Economic Studies, from the very first issue, tackled themes aimed at the research of economic phenomena with a view to European integration by reporting it to the trend of the European Economic Science. The exactingness imposed by the editorial staff resulted in an immediate visible increasing of the quality standards and the scientific content of the magazine. In obvious scientific progress, from a number to another, the publication was requested (a subscription change) by higher education institutions in this country and from abroad. The journal is known and requested in the Scientific National community. On the occasion of different events and scientific manifestations under the aegis of annals. VJES welcomes papers only in English. Authors are encouraged to have their manuscript reviewed for language before submission.

The printed is printed in high graphic conditions and also is an open access journal which means that all content is freely available without charge to the user or his/her institution. Users are allowed to read, download, copy, distribute, print, search, or link to the full texts of the articles in this journal without asking prior permission from the publisher or the author. This is in accordance with the BOAI definition of open access

All submissions first go through an internal peer review process. Each submission is being verified with an Anti-Plagiarism Software (<http://www.strikeplagiarism.com/>), and after papers are accepted for further reviewing only the ones that do not exceed 20-25% (for at least 6 pages) of information taken from other sources. The editorial secretary makes an initial decision to send the manuscript out for peer review or to reject without external review. Articles can be rejected at this stage for a variety of reasons such as: 20-25% of information taken from other sources, similarity with a recently published article, the topic is outside of the scope of the Journal, little new information is provided, important flaws in the scientific validity, or an unprofessional presentation. This process normally takes 5 days. If the editor believes the article may be of interest to our readers, it is then sent out for external review. Each submitted paper undergoes a double peer-review, by two different referees, which lasts for almost a month. After the technical review process, the manuscript may either be accepted in its initial form, or recommended for modification and further review, or simply rejected.
