

Instructions for Authors

- Musicalia, the Journal of the Czech Museum of Music, is published semi-annually or, as a double issue, once during a year.
- Its main portion consists of scholarly studies not previously published based on research in collections of musical sources.
- Published in English and Czech.
- These studies range in length from four pages (7,200 characters) to a maximum of twenty pages (36,000 characters).
- The journal also includes articles of an informative nature acquainting readers with the past, the structure, and the activities of the museum; these may range from a single page up to ten pages (18,000 characters) according to their importance.
- The editors accept texts in the formats ‘.doc’ or ‘RTF’.
- Use a single standard 12-point font with justification to the left, without spaces between paragraphs, without division of words into syllables, and with no pictures inserted into the text.
- Indicate footnotes in the main text with raised numbers, and give their content at the end of the page.
- Graphs, tables, and illustrations must be submitted to the editors as separate files in print quality (preferably 300 or more dpi).
- Authors are responsible for securing authors’ rights and reproduction rights for illustrations.
- The style for bibliographical citations may be found at <http://www.nm.cz/publikace-detail.php>.
- Authors also supply an abstract in English (max. 900 characters) and keywords.
